DON'T STINT THE CHILD TO SAVE ANY FOOD

The United States food administration has two great commandments: I—"Save Food;" II—"Use Food Wisely."

The second rule should be of particular emphasis in the feeding of children.

There is danger that homemakers, in their zeal to serve the nation and conserve food may forget that, as the food administration points out "a child can no more fit into a food conservation program suitable for a grownup than it can comfortably wear the clothes of a man."

Children are the future life of the nation and do least fraction of their clency. The food of children is for one big purpose—to make them grow.

Children are the future life of their physical fitness to meet the problems of the future must be sacrificed in the name of present economy.

Certain foods on which grown-ups reduce their rations must be preserved intact in the child's diet because they are the bone and muscle builders for which there is no satisfactory substitute. Milk, butter and eggs are among these foods and they must be provided for the child even at the expense of their almost total elimination from the diet of the older members of the family.

Every growing boy and girl should be fed from a pint to a quart of whole milk each day, either as a drink, in soups, or with cereals and puddings.

Every child's food for each day should contain one food from each of five classes: 1. Milk and dishes made of milk and eggs, meat, fish, poultry and meat substitute. 2. Cereals, foods and bread. 3. Whole-some fat, butter, if possible—no fried foods. 4. Fruits and vegetables. 5. Simple sweets—jellies, jam home-made candy or maple sugar and honey.

To mothers of families the food pledge should have one additional rule: Stint not the child lest ye spoil the man!—Observer.

Teach Children To Save

Start the kiddies right by making them want to save their money.

A personal savings account in a high-class banking institution like this, where children are given the proper attention and encouragement to handle their own finances is a good start in the right direction. One dollar opens an account.

Economy Your Watchword Purity Your Standard

Your Uncle Sam wants you to be as saving as possible in the matter of Food, but there is not a citizen of these good old United States that he want to go hungry.

In the matter of Conservation of food, remember this: The Best goes the longest way. You cannot economize by using the cheapest food products obtainable. Highly nourishing food comes higher in price and is the cheapest in the long run.

Feed your family from our store. We are constantly on the watch out for the best from every viewpoint. If it is pure and wholesome and at the same time highly nourishing, we have it. 'Tis the very best way to economize.
